

You are Invited

Interdisciplinary Approaches to Elder Justice: Unlocking the Potential of Restorative Practices

VIRTUAL CONFERENCE
October 15-16, 2020, 2-6p.m. EST

A symposium of international and interdisciplinary experts in the fields of restorative justice and elder abuse designed to foster collaboration, exchange ideas, and develop best practices. Program will feature presenters and accomplished practitioners from around the world in the fields of social work, law, medicine, nursing, government, and psychiatry.

Learn about cutting edge projects around the world, discuss the strengths and challenges of restorative models in this context, engage in small group discussions about best practices, and participate in the circle process.

Featured speakers include:

Jennifer Llewellyn

*Professor of Law; Yogis and Keddy Chair in Human Rights Law
Dalhousie University Schulich School of Law
Halifax, Nova Scotia*

Chris Marshall

*Diana Unwin Chair in Restorative Justice
University of Victoria School of Government
Wellington, New Zealand*

Information

For more information, contact Mary Helen McNeal at mhmcneal@law.syr.edu

Coordinators

Professor Mary Helen McNeal

Syracuse University College of Law

Dr. Maria Brown

Syracuse University Aging Studies Institute

Registration

Free but pre-registration required

More information available soon at law.syr.edu/elder_justice_and_restorative_practice

S Syracuse University

law.syr.edu/elder_justice_and_restorative_practice

The Symposium is Sponsored by:

Syracuse University
Aging Studies Institute

Syracuse University
Diversity and Inclusion

